Abstract

One of the most important bases related to interfiled studies of the holy Quran is Quran universality. Quran universality has an important relationship with interfiled studies, because unless the boundary of Quran universality isn't determined, we cannot consider its relationship with the other fields of science. Three different viewpoints are suggested regarding Quran universality: the maximum viewpoint which regards all the fields in Quran, intermediate viewpoint which views Quran as the narrator of the directional affairs, and the minimum viewpoint which relates Quran universality restricted to hereafter affairs. In this aspect, there is some distinction between Quran universality and its boundary: Quran has concrete universality in directional affairs but its knowledge domain isn't restricted to guidance and some other scientific and experimental aspects are suggested in line with the same main target. The purpose of directional affairs in concrete universality is anything necessary for global and hereafter prosper. Quran draws a comprehensive program in directional affairs which its entire purpose is global and hereafter prospers. This current project, in addition to considering and criticizing different views regarding Quran universality, analyses its relation with interfiled studies and in this aspect, considering the harmful effects of the interfiled studies, has suggested its main challenges.

Keywords: Quran; Quran universality; Quran prophecy; interfiled studies.
